

ABOUT DOING OUR OWN WORK

For 15 consecutive years, Doing Our Own Work has provided a unique and innovative context for white people who seek to deepen their commitment to confronting and challenging racism.

Offering more than 40 hours of "class time," Doing Our Own Work equips white people with the analysis, skills, and tools needed to be more effective anti-racist allies with people of color and to help bring about institutional change. Doing Our Own Work is designed as a supplement to, not a substitute for, contexts where people of diverse races discuss and strategize together how racism can be challenged.

For additional information and dates of upcoming seminars, visit the Allies for Change web site: www.alliesforchange.org, email melaniemorrison@alliesforchange.org, or call 989-855-2277.

Hundreds of people from communities all across North America have taken part in this intensive seminar. Here is what some of those participants say about the experience:

“After Doing Our Own Work, I am much more willing to take risks as a white person when working alongside of, and in solidarity with, people of color.”

“Doing Our Own Work gave me a broader and deeper knowledge of anti-racism, white privilege, my people’s history, and the way oppression functions.”

Doing Our Own Work is a program of Allies for Change, an organization providing anti-oppression education, training, and resources for individuals and organizations committed to social change.
